Exit & Termination Protection

To ensure fairness and long-term commitment from both sides, we propose the following:

If Curious Lillies decides to end the partnership before the 3-year lock-in period:

- The company will give Haripriya a minimum of 6 months' notice.
- All pending Honorarium and Marketing salary for the notice period + the next 6 months will be paid in full (as severance).
- Haripriya will receive pro-rata vested equity based on time served.
- She will have the right to sell her vested stake back to the LLP at Fair Market Value (FMV), with the LLP having Right of First Refusal.
- The company will issue a mutually agreed joint public statement to protect her reputation.

This clause protects Haripriya's time, effort, and brand while giving the company flexibility if their priorities change.

Additional Points

- Dedicated marketing budget for campaigns featuring Haripriya.
- Non-compete should have regional limits and only for preschools/kindergartens .
- Flexibility in scheduling due to her young child.
- LLP owns content for company use; Haripriya can select content personally with approval.

We have kept the financials reasonable and close to your original offer while making the overall terms fair, motivating, and protected for both parties. This structure rewards Haripriya's stardom separately from her active efforts and provides security in case the company's plans change in the future.

I believe this creates a genuine win-win partnership. Haripriya is genuinely interested, and we are keen to finalise this soon.

I would be happy to discuss this proposal in detail over a call with Haripriya present. Please suggest a convenient time.
